"Back to You"

I heard a million tales before I came to you
One after the other said, "Time's the only cure"

When love is forever gone

It disappeared like stars at dawn

And every road that I've been on

It leads me back to you (yeah)

It leads me back to you

I walked a million miles before I came to you
Heaven wide above my head, sand beneath my shoes

Life is the saddest song

But it was nothing until you came along

'Cause every road that I've been on

Leads me back to you

Leads me back to you

It leads me back to you

I sold a million lines before I came to you

Guess none of us could read the lie behind the golden truth

Trust can't be counted on

It's as crooked as the Amazon

'Cause every road that I've been on

Leads me back to you (yeah, yeah, yeah)

It leads me back to you

I've been looking for trouble, trouble

I've been looking for trouble, trouble (yeah, yeah, yeah)

I've been looking for trouble, trouble

I'm looking for you

I walked a million miles before I came to you

Heaven wide above my head, sand beneath my shoes

Life is the saddest song

But it was nothing until you came along

'Cause every road that I've been on

Leads me back to you

Leads me back to you (yeah, yeah, yeah...)

Leads me back to you (yeah, yeah...)

Every road that I've been on

Leads me back to you
