"The Dirt I'm Buried In"

Once upon a highway

Lost among the lights of neon tribes

I used to be a part of you

You used me and I used you too

You took me to the desert

Desecrated, desperate prey, oh yeah

You took me to the desert

I smoke the blackened tissue

High inside the church of the neon lights

I grease my limbs and enter you

The engine roars as engines do

The pressure we are under

Unmarked grave, the undead reign, oh yeah

The stars align

Behind my eyes

I'm going blind

I look up to the sky

But all I see is the dirt I'm buried in

Lonely lays the longing

I'm so far away from the world that buried me

An unknown destination

Tied up in the trunk of a stolen ride

I've never seen a sky so red

Just one more try before we're dead

The ashes in our nostrils

Ask for nothing, act like you're ok

The stars align

Behind my eyes

I'm going blind

I look up to the sky

But all I see is the dirt I'm buried in

Lonely lays the longing

I'm so far away from the world that buried me

I look up to the sky
But all I see is the dirt I'm buried in
Lonely lays the longing
I'm so far away from the world that buried me

A crushing wave
Upon the rocks
A shallow grave
On the coast
I'll wait

I look up to the sky
But all I see is the dirt I'm buried in
Lonely lays the longing
I'm so far away from the world that buried me

I look up to the sky
But all I see is the dirt I'm buried in
Lonely lays the longing
I'm so far away from the world that buried me
