"We Eat Our Young"

Homo sapiens have made it perfectly clear

We can't control ourselves

Living a life perfectly fine with blindly multiplying

Conscious of ruination coursing through our own bloodlines

Is this not a cesspool, our toilet earth

That we've crafted for our progenies?

And in this landfill where we lay down our births

A future rife with variants of disease...

Who even are we?

What is our endgame?

What's with this army that survived when "the end" came?

Ah! The fleshy architect!

Bold in design but fucking out of its mind
With self-indulgence and a self-worship
Birthing in stifling numbers as the planet worsens

We cannot care

We never cared

We wouldn't dare

We've upped the ante as the most invasive species of life that ever shat on this earth

That learned to shit in its hearth

That ever bore living birth, that taught its offspring to drive its own hearse

Straight into the dirt

Brought up to be so inconsiderate

Living in delight of belligerence

Through example they're taught indifference

Pieces of shit, point blank - deliberate

Full of contempt rife with disinterest

Legitimately fucking ignorant

Litter my seed? Never considered it

Own world we obliterate

We eat our young

We eat our young

We eat our young

We eat our young

We eat our young

We eat our young

We eat our young

We eat our young
